

Dear friends of the UECT,

I am delighted to invite you to the 17th Ulm Electro Chemical Talks (UECT) which will again be a unique opportunity to meet world leading experts in the field of batteries, fuel cells and other electrochemical energy technologies.

This conference offers an excellent platform for discussing technical issues as well as for personal interaction. This year's UECT will highlight the transition of batteries and fuel cells from the lab to the factory floor.

This transition comes with new challenges and tasks for both industry and academia and only close interaction in between scientists and engineers will ensure the success and the acceptance of these technologies as pillars of a CO<sub>2</sub>-free future environment.

In addition, this conference will also address the necessary infrastructure investments and the need for sustainable production and recycling. Scientific poster presentations will give the participants but especially young scientists a platform for discussions. Invited, high level speakers will present their view and latest results on the related activities.

Looking forward to seeing you in Ulm,

Prof. Dr. Markus Hoelzle
